The Noted Louisville Lawyer Dies of Pneumonia.

A Cousin of the Phelps Family of This City and Was Born Here.

Hon. Jack Phelps, who died of pneumonia, in Louisville Thursday, was a son of Col. Jas. S. Phelps, who survives him.

He was born in Hopkinsville, Ky., July 17, 1857, and in his infancy was taken to Louisville by his parents. He attended the public schools and was graduated from the High School with high honors. He decided to become a lawyer and studied so hard that he was forced to go West for his health, locating at Salt Lake City, Utah. Here he remained for about two years, until his health was fully restored.

Returning to Louisville, he began the practice of law in 1880, being for a time in the office of Judge J. C. Hemingway. In 1881 he formed a law partnership with William L. Jackson, Jr., afterward Judge of the criminal division of the Circuit Court.

On January 1, the day he entered into partnership with Mr. Jackson, he was married to the daughter of Mr. John Kaye. His married life was an exceedingly happy one.

His practice at the bar grew until his income reached $20,000 a year. Mr. Phelps is survived by his wife, who was Miss Amy Kaye, and three children—John K., aged twenty; Zack, Jr., aged seventeen, and Amy Elliott aged eight.

TWO DIVORCES WANTED.

Cruel Treatment One Alleges And Abandonment The Other.

Lou Leavell has filed suit for divorce from James Leavell. Plaintiff states in her petition that they were married in this county in 1895 and lived together until 1899, when the defendant beat and injured her in such a cruel manner that she was afraid to live longer with him, as he had made threats against her life, and that she believed her life would be greatly endangered by remaining longer with said defendant. She prays for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony and for $50 per year alimony to assist in the support of their little child.

Emmett Lacy also filed suit for divorce from his wife, Martha Lacy, alleging abandonment. They were married in 1896, says the petition, and lived together as man and wife for three years.

The parties are colored.

STIKE SITUATION.

Both Sides Claim Advantages Have Been Gained.

President Shaffer Attacked And a Feeling of Discontent is Growing.

Pittsburg, Sept. 2.—At a meeting of the Bayview, Wis., lodge of the Amalgamated Association, former Vice President Hickey, of the association, who has been investigating the steel strike situation in the East, accused the national officers of the association of misrepresenting the attitude of the United States Steel Corporation. He declared that the strike seemed to be lost; that 72 per cent. of the mills are working, and that it would take years to repair the damage which the association had sustained.

He also charged that President Shaffer had violated the constitution of the organization. The strikers claim that they have gained a victory in the open hearth department of the Duquesne steel plant, and claim that the mill will be forced to close to-day. The report is denied by steel officials, who claim that the plant is running in full blast. It is said that the men from the Bessemer department have been put to work in the place of the men who walked out.

BEDFELLOWS IN MEXICO.

Traveler Spends an Unpleasant Night in Company with Lizards.

"I had a rather unhappy experience once, myself," said a listener, "but it was at a time when my nerves could not stand a great deal, and the shock was no surprise to me. I was really happy when I found that my eyes had played me no trick and that the things about me were real things. I had journeyed down into Mexico, for the purpose of spending some time. The trip was partly a business trip, and partly for pleasure as I could get out of an experience in a country that was new to me. I ought to say here that I had never been in a tropical country. My life had been spent in the north, and whatever I knew about many of the forms of life in tropical countries was altogether theoretical. I had merely read about many of the things, but I learned afterwards that there were many things I had never dreamed of even in moments when my mind was inclined to conjure with the horrors of uneven sleep. Well, I found myself in Mexico. I was in the wilds of Mexico, and that, where one could find but few of the comforts known to the more advanced ways of living. I stopped with an old Mexican one night, and he put me in a dumpy little room off to myself. I slept on the floor, or rather I started to sleep on the floor, and it was a dirt floor at that. I clapped up on a mattress made of some light material. I had just closed my eyes when I felt something scramble rapidly over my forehead. It startled me a bit, but I kept cool and still to see if it would happen again.

It happened in less time than it takes to tell it. This thing kept up until the experiment was disorganized my nerves, and I could stand it no longer. I got up and started out, and I felt the same thing happening to my feet. Partly panic-stricken, I flushed into the room of the old Mexican. "Something in yonder," I said, pointing toward my room. He took in the situation at once, and assured me that it was all right. He struck a light and went to the room with me to assure me that there was no danger. When I got back to my room I was paralyzed. Crawling over the walls of the hut and scrapping over the floor, over the mattress on which I had lain, and running here and there, and everywhere, was a perfect army of lizards of all sizes, ages and varieties. I told the Mexican to leave me the light, and that I would occupy the room for the night. And so I did. But I did not sleep, for I did not want the lizards, however harmless and companionable they might be, to convert my face and forehead into a promenade. This wound up my experience in Mexico, and I scampered over the border as soon as possible, and since that time the wilder regions in the tropics have had no fascination for me."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

Curious, Though Disastrous, Experience in a French Forest.

A lady was entering the forest of St. Germain, near Paris, in an automobile recently when the machinery became out of order. The passengers brought the car to a standstill in order to overhaul the engines, when almost immediately a violent explosion occurred and the car was enveloped in flames. The passengers had a narrow escape. The liquid fuel in the reservoir of the car overflowed and became ignited, and it was feared that the burning stream of oil would run among the bushes fringing the road, setting them alight, in which event the forest would have been involved and widespread damage caused. The forest fire, however, was averted by the felling of a few trees and the cutting away of the undergrowth in the vicinity of the burning vehicle. The motor car burned fiercely for about an hour, leaving only a mass of tangled steel and ironwork. The value of the automobile was $5,000.—Scientific American.

HOPKINSVILLE PEACH

This Finest of all Peaches and Something in it.

Peach Crop Heaviest For Many Years and of Excellent Quality.

The peach crop in this county has turned out to be something enormous and from $1 a bushel at the beginning of the season, the price has declined until the market is thoroughly glutted with peaches of all kinds and of the finest quality. Many farmers being unable to sell from wagons have had to haul them back home to feed to their hogs. They have in some instances failed to bring offers of more than 15 cents a bushel. With fruit so plentiful, it is almost impossible to sell any but the best peaches. These bring from 25 cents to 40 cents a bushel.

In point of quality it is the universal opinion that the "Hopkinsville" peach stands at the very top. It is not so large as usual this year on account of the heavy crop on the trees and the drought in the growing season, but the quality and flavor are excellent. The Hopkinsville peach when at its best is as large as a man's fist. It has a red blush on one side and sometimes all over. The flesh is white and "mealy" but red at the seeds. In shape it is oblong with a long "teat" on the end, that is its most distinctive feature. The Hopkinsville peach has been known and raised here, coming true from the seed, for more than fifty years. It can now be obtained from most of the nurseries, having been first put on the market many years ago by Downer Bros. of Todd county. But the peach did not originate here, and nobody knows where it did originate. About 1850 a stranger came to Hopkinsville and put up at the "tavern" that used to stand opposite the court house. In these days he would be called a drummer, but half a century ago he was a "traveler." While stopping at the tavern he told about a wonderful peach he had found at one of his stopping places, that in flavor surpassed any peach he had ever eaten. He said the fruit so impressed him that he had saved a lot of seed and had them in his grip. He got out a handful and gave them to Mr. John S. Bryan, who was the clerk in the tavern. Mr. Bryan divided them with the Major John Stites. Both raised several trees and soon the fame of the new peach got abroad in the land. Mr. Bryan named it the Hopkinsville peach and the name has stuck to it. It is sold under this name by the nurseries and is propagated everywhere by planting the seed. This delightful peach is now on the market. Don't fail to try it and don't neglect to plant the seeds.

Thought They Were Married.

A queer story is told on a young couple from the north end of the county who came to the County Clerk's office a few weeks ago and obtained a marriage license. After paying the accustomed fee and being given the papers it seems that the young pair went back home happy and contented and settled down to enjoy their honeymoon. After several days of wedded bliss (as they thought) some one asked by whom they were married when they came to town. The young man replied that they were married by Mr. Booker, the Clerk, or Bob Noe, the deputy, he did not remember which, but he had his papers (meaning his license) all right. It was explained that the services of a Magistrate or a minister of the Gospel were required before the job would be complete were on the hunt for one of those personages.—Springfield News Leader.

MAN OF EXPERIENCE.

Capt. Lemly, Judge Advocate of Schley Court of Inquiry.

Has Had More to Do with the Prosecution of Naval Law Cases Than Any Other Officer in the Service.

Capt. Lemly is particularly well fitted for the exacting duties of judge advocate. He is now serving his third term as judge advocate general. He is a civil as well as military officer. So far as is known he has not expressed an opinion as to the merits of either Rear Admiral Sampson or Rear Admiral Schley. He served with Schley in the Essex on the South Atlantic station, and was a watch officer on board the Thetis, commanded by Capt. Schley, which while serving formed the Greely relief expedition.

Capt. Lemly says he would feel hurt to have it intimated that he has any personal feeling whatever in the controversy. In all the time he has been at the head of the legal department of the navy, his service dating back to 1881, he has, notwithstanding his position, always spoken his mind. Capt. Lemly says he would be sorry if he had been called Schley better than Sampson, perhaps. He was one of Schley's personal friends when he was in action against Sampson. He has served with Sampson on the famous Greely relief expedition, and he rendered valuable service to Schley on that occasion, which the senior officer recognized. On the other hand, Capt. Lemly has known Sampson officially in the navy department, with whom he was associated, and they were thrown into close contact in a business point of view at least for several years.

Capt. Lemly had already arranged to depart from Washington on his annual leave on a trip through Canada some time in August. He will arrange to leave on a later date now in order to be able to study up this

PENSION.

For a Soldier Who Lost a Leg While Bathing.

Washington, August 8.—Admiral Kempff has forwarded to the Navy Department an official report, thrilling in its details, of the biting off of the leg of Quartermaster S. Mc. Kie, third class, of the gunboat Annapolis, by a shark or others mammal sea monster.

The Annapolis has been stationed at Iloilo, and on June 24 last a party was sent out for rifle target practice. Commander Rohrer, in charge of the Annapolis, states that permission was given several of the men to go swimming, while others were engaged in firing. Two of the men had been in for some time, when McKie joined them, and asked if they had been able to touch bottom. Being answered in the negative he made a dive and was gone for several seconds. One of the seamen says he heard a gurgling sound beneath the water. A moment later McKie appeared on the surface, and shouted "Shark! Shark!" The surface of the water was covered with blood near where he came up. McKie started to swim, and, although crippled, reached the boat and was pulled in by his companions. A horrible sight met their eyes. The Quartermaster's leg having been bitten off near the knee. With all dispatch he was taken aboard the Annapolis, where the surgeon found it necessary to amputate the limb between the knee and hip. The surgeon, in his report, states that while the accident was not in the line of duty, it was incident to the service. Admiral Kempf, however, in indorsing the papers, holds that as the Quartermaster had received permission from the offices in charge to go in bathing the accident occurred in the line of duty. Under these circumstances the crippled Quartermaster probably will receive a pension.

In some of the Swiss valleys the inhabitants are all afflicted with goitre or thick neck. Instead of regarding this as a deformity, they seem to think it a natural feature of physical development, and tourists passing the valleys are sometimes jeered by the goitrous inhabitants because they are without this offensive swelling. Thus a form of disease may become so common as to be regarded as a natural necessary condition of life. It is so, to a large extent, what are called diseases of women. Every woman suffers more or less with irregularity, ulceration, debilitating drains or female weakness, and this suffering is so common and so universal that many women accept it as natural to their sex. But it is a condition as unnatural as it is unnecessary. The use of Dr. Pearce's Favorite Prescription, strengthens the delicate womanly organs and regulates the womanly functions, so that woman is practically delivered from the pain and misery which eat up ten years of a woman's life—between the ages of fifteen and forty five. Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well.

BATHER IN A PLIGHT.

Mean Trick of Tramps on Two New Workers.

Worochelle, N. Y., Aug. 25.—J. B. Cohen and Louis Turin, who went in bathing in Echo Bay had an embarrassing experience. They went into the water with bathing suits, and while they were swimming about, two tramps came along and stole their clothing, leaving their own outfits behind. The men, when they came out and discovered the robbery, were so angry that they tore up the grass and threw sand in the air. The stolen clothing contained their watches and money, and that left by the tramps was so tattered and dirty that they could not wear it. The men scoured the woods for the tramps, but failing to find them, hired a boy to go to Cohen's store and bring them some clothing. It took the boy about three hours to make the trip, and in the meanwhile Cohen and Turin kept themselves submerged in the water. It was nearly midnight when they reached New Rochelle and reported their loss to the police.

SCIENCE AND POLITICS

The success of the Teachers' Institute last week was greatly impaired by a political move made in the closing hours, which resulted in the adoption of a resolution endorsing the Republican combine candidate for school superintendent, Miss Katie McDowell, who was the official head of the Institute. At the time the resolution was sprung, only three or four Democratic voters were present, most of the teachers having gone home. The few Democrats present voted against the resolution and one of them protested against the bad taste of running the schools into politics, but the resolution was put through as planned.

Viewed from the standpoint of propriety, we believe this partisan action will prove more hurtful than beneficial to the combine leaders. The people of the county are not ready to have the schools of the county dragged into the mire of politics. They are not ready to approve the machine methods of the ring that would lower the teachers' institute to the level of a political convention. We doubt very seriously if Miss McDowell approves this very unsafe attempt to make her the beneficiary of such a step, and commit her to this policy in the conduct of her office. If the teachers of the county, who are paid to instruct the children of Democrats as well as Republicans, are to owe their positions to the potentiality of a political pull and are to be mere cog-wheels in the Republican Machine that has caused a split in its own party by its corrupt methods, then the people of the county are entitled to know it. The KENTUCKIAN has no feeling of hostility towards Miss McDowell. She is well qualified for the position she fills and as a teacher and as an official stands high enough not to need such methods to promote her interests. Her greatest element of popularity has been the fact that she as a woman was not supposed to be a Republican politician and that in the February primary she was left off to the combine slate, and could lay claim to having been honestly nominated. To take her candidate from this lofty plane and strip it to the corpse of the Court House ring, is the worse thing that could happen to her.

Miss McDowell for years held a position in the city schools by the votes of Democratic trustees. In the 22 years the city schools have been established, there has never been a time when Democrats did not control all appointments, and there has never been a time when the superintendent and a fair proportion of the teachers were not Republicans. Politics has never been injected into the management of the city schools, controlled by Democrats, and it should not be the case with the county schools controlled by Republicans.

If this is to be the future policy in Christian county, let the issue be openly made and give the people a chance to be heard upon it the polls.

War between Venezuela and Colombia seems imminent. About 9,500 Venezuelans are massed on the Colombian frontier in constant readiness to support the Colombian revolutionaries. A large force of Colombian regulars are reported to be near Cucuta. Venezuela has addressed a note to the foreign powers defining the position of affairs.

Boss Sapp's convention Saturday in Louisville nominated a ticket for city and county offices headed by John A. Stratton for Mayor. Mr. Sapp's entire slate was nominated. W. A. Morawether, nominee for City Treasurer, and Dr. Louis Frank, nominee for School Trustee, announced that they would not accept the nominations given them by the powers.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Great Favorite.

The soothing and healing properties of this remedy, its pleasant taste and price, and permanent cures we made in great numbers, have made it great throughout America and popular everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of small children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief, and as it contains no opium or other harmful ingredients, may even be administered to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Republicans of Warren, Daviess, Union and Franklin counties have agreed with Brown Democrats on fusion tickets, in opposition to the regular Democratic tickets. With a fusion record of this kind as an object lesson, the Ring Republicans of Christian will have to go slow in their warfare on the fusion of Democrats and Anti-ring Republicans in Christian county.

"I had a good deal of trouble with my bowels and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by all druggists.

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking 3 ounce of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somewhat the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking

SEPTEMBER STORMS.

Tidal Waves Will be Abnormally High and Fierce.

Marked Drops of Temperature, Even to Frosts in Northern Directions, Probable.

Following is Hick's prediction in part for September weather:

"About the time of the moon's last quarter or extreme north declination on the 5th, reactionary disturbances will show themselves, when new storm areas will appear, or general storms, which may be advancing from the equator, will become more pronounced."

As we enter the regular storm period central on the 10th, we may expect a very warm spell in most parts. From about Monday, the 9th, to Friday the 13th, barometric readings will become disturbed, and dangerously low depressions will admonish of possible violence.

Storms of this period are apt to reach a crisis on or touching the 10th, 11th and 12th. Tidal waves in the gulf and around the coasts will be abnormally high and fierce about the 12th and 13th. In all probability general rain storms, gales and changes of weather will visit the interior of the continent at this time, as well as the coast region. The magnetic and electric forces that normally lie dormant in our globe and atmosphere, as a rule reach a maximum state of unrest and activity about September 11th. This is often manifested by earth currents and auroral displays, disturbing telegraphy and illuminating the north sky.

Storms and changes will come with the early storm periods of the month, and that very marked drops of the temperature, even to frosts in northern directions, will be reached before the middle of September.

The reactionary storm period, central about the 16th and 17th, will bring perceptible changes to warmer, falling barometer, growing cloudiness and precipitation; but more general and energetic disturbances are almost certain to result during the Vulcan storm period central on the 22nd, coincident with the center of earth's autumnal equinox.

Moon is on the equator on the 26th, full on the 28th, and in perigee on the 29th. Tidal waves will rise to a maximum in many parts of the earth during this period, central on the 28th and 29th. If a touch of frost, snow and early winter visit regions northward at the close of these disturbances, readers well up in the theory and forecasts will not be surprised or caught napping.

In Memory of John Nick Dixon, Once more the angel of death who moves in so mysterious a way, has visited our home (Old Olivet) and claimed from among its flock the noblest one of all.

The pride of a mother's heart and a loving father's ambition, will gladden no more with his smile that home now cheerless and sad. And the friends that knew him best can only, with me, now exclaim, "Oh, that he should be taken while yet on the threshold of manhood; in the strength of his useful goodness and with seemingly so much to live for." Words are feeble, I know, in an effort now to console her with a broken heart, and him with a blighted hope. Yet as one who has known him from childhood, I would drop as it were, with my pen, a flower of loving remembrance on the grave of my departed friend.

Though it grieves us to know he has gone, and we cry out in pain to him who has willed that while yet in his youth he should be taken thus sadly away. When the maturing angel again shall visit our sorrowing mid, where oh where will he find one so well prepared to go where his bright young spirit may ever keep watch with the guardian angels o'er that home so deep in despair. But the grief stricken father and mother and grand parents, aged and gray, may grow strong in the knowledge at least, that it will be only a few fleeting years e'er they gather with him around the throne of our Maker to dwell ever more, I have known him from early childhood to be generous, honest and true, free from the errors of boyhood which characterized you, and with a modesty much admired, he was always known to respect the many social laws by which we always prove the highest type of manhood. Of him there was never said one word that might cause a blush to mantle a father's cheek or give a mother pain, and the record of his faultless youth (brought to such an untimely close) will linger long in the hearts of all who knew him well. Dutiful son, affectionate brother and generous friend, farewell. May the angels of love surround you while the light of your spirit is shed o'er the checkered pathway of life which your loved ones must travel e'er they greet you once more in the light of God's eternal day.

He Owes His Life to the Forethought of a Companion.

While on a camping trip in Webster county, Mr. L. L. Stump, of New Haven, Conn., W. Va., suffered an attack of blood flux. He says, "I firmly believe that I owe my life to the forethought of one of the company who had taken along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Moral—Proceed with a bottle of this before leaving home. It cannot be obtained while on board the cars or steamship, and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to leave it with you. Commercial travelers never leave home on a journey without it. For sale by all drug-gists.

MOTHER'S LAST JOURNEY.

Yes, all is ready. Open wide the door
This last sad time, and bear her gently
Out through the hall, where oft she greeted us.
With steps we take, and a tender kiss,
Out through the flower garden, where she spent so happy hour, tending her flowers.
We cannot speak because we love her so!-
Sadly we follow, silently and slow,
And when the door is closed, that never
Will open to admit that dearest form.

Bright shines the sun, to mock us in our grief.
Our hearts so near to breaking, while the pain of parting presses on us—and we manage to bear it with a smile, though today
Never again on this sad earth to meet!
Never to hear your voice, or feel the touch
Of your dear hand? Alas, how can we stay, Knowing thou're gone?" But One was near Whose form we could not see, but who did speak.

"O hearts of Peace and Hope, and say:

"O mourning hearts, rejoice! your mother lives!"

This is she with me in Paradise!
Could you but hear her now, as glad she sings
That sweet new song; could you but see
From which all pain is gone; could you but Once more in those dear, loving eyes, from which
All tears are wiped away—would rejoice for her, and thankful say: "Mother's at rest."
Then, as we listened to that still, small voice.

"Two angels sent us to the Shining Ones
Who welcomed her upon that Happy Shore,
And the dear Saviour had so loved so long Received her in His arms, and comfort came;
As lone we stood, her voice grew all the louder,
For we knew she now abode in happy home,
The journey's ended! Mother's Home at last!"

PROMISE.

By Eden Philpotts.

In this most ancient orchard, the old trees stand disarrayed irregularly, their veins having been torn away,
their plates are young, supple plants, whose youthful bearing,
trim uprightness and aspiring attitude contrast with the gnarled patriarchs around them and with those intermediate bearers, now grown full vigour of life and splendor of fraction. Here the young and adult mingle with the young, as in human colonies; and from my post upon a dead stump I mark the pageant of awakening displayed amongst them, and breathe new life from the abundance around me; new hope, for this promises better than from the past; the color and the gleam of a million petals, the glow of the sun lances, the song of the birds, and the undross of those little glimmering myriads busy in every open flower about the vital matter and honey and bee-head.

May is resigning all her secret and precious, will be June. May departs gloriously, and makes a noble end in music and such happiness as only wild things know. She passes with a swan song of promise; and here alone I seek it.

Beneath the orchard spreads a wonderful carpet woven of green, brightening blossoms. The cuckoo flower and the daisy, the tereph, the blue speedwell and the budding seedheads of many grasses are rippling to my feet, while where the orchard slopes towards a hazel hedge great snow-white umbel-bearers rise above lesser things, and the soft green leaves of the ivy and the swords of the yellow iris shine soft blue-green above running water. The nettles, in vigorous communities, look gray amid so much young verdure, and the last of the bluebells hang their heads beneath the ivy, and the last of the Mother's written on ancient barks
In tones of ripe, mossy green, of silver-green, and of silver-gray, the trunks arise, and in wild, perfect confusion they thrust forth their boughs
and main branches from parred stems, and stand out like the last of the stars oblique; they spring aloft, then droop; they drop, then rise; they turn upon themselves and twist lovingly back to the parent stem.
Their fear of form is partly hidden
at this hour, and the tenderful harmonies of the leaves, the fine, delicate feathering garbs, are almost draped in vernal garments.

I think lichens love the rose folk for here, as on the blackthorn and the white-thorn, they frill and tucker
the baby tree as freely as they cling like a serpall to the venerable ancient. To the very top of the trunk they push and climb, and now the crimson and snow of the flowers peep from among their encrustations, even as in autumn the ripening harvest will gleam there.

The apple blossom under direct sunshine is alive with pure light and wonderful blue shades, for a petal is cool soft blue, by contrast against the gold and deep crimson of sunlit flower and ruby bud. The pageant passes from wealth of dewy detail into dim splendor seen afar. A little way and the leaf and bough and the rose and the crimson and the gold and the bright sun all together sweep every line and curve with the sleepy, milky summer air against this curtain gleam the bees;

the drift wind moves a large leaf to let the sunbeam through the black birds—who always seem to put imagination into his song—dutes it unseen; the chaffinch—cheerful, busy optimist amongst songsters—utters
his little assurance that all is well and that we as need be, all hope to the ground like a ball of lichen. In an apple-fork. From the unfolding foam of hoary dwarfs and upright adults alike comes promise.
Early fruit is already setting, while later trees still hold their buds tight clenched, as though a hundred springs have taught them to leap.
I am told that if Mrs. Templa, June commands: the first may be resisted, but the second brings mandate from the Mother, and, before it, even the tardiest bud must open to fulfill destiny.

There abides a splendor of every green blade, and in such clear seeing I can watch the very heart-beat of spring until blade and bud and open blossom are stripped away, and I go under the brown and the gray, and neither the rind and the bark and pounding heart grow green, until to the core of them. And there I see their sweet, sugary blood coursing;
I mark how it throbs pure quintessence
of life from the Mother's fountains to each dunc uncurling leaf, to every knot of buds, to every least vein, with a power that no man can overcome. I see personalty awakes, and I share every tree life and stretch hands to them; while they approach me also; and, each coming a little from our sequestered way, touch here in common temples of the year, the portals of their being, they sympathize with the nature hid in me.

Then at this moment came a girl
to me—a girl with gray eyes and red lips and budding shape. Her sunbonnet was pale as the petals that clustered about her head, and she was a welcome sight. She flashed upon me her white apron. This small daughter of the spring approached me where I sat, and bid me welcome and laughed pleasantly to see me awake as from the sleep
she had given her voice. Her laugh was very dulce and so soft that it mingled musically with the hum of the bees above us.

"Brave bloom," she said; "I love
this time best, for 'tis all life an'
death—all promise of a glad crop
come autumn."

"What Shall we Eat?"

Every day the same old question, What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner? assays with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in a agreeable variety at a moderate cost.

There is a daily department in The Chicago Record-Herald, which is intended to answer this question satisfactorily every day in the year. It is entitled "Meals for a Day," and provides menus for the three meals every day, with the necessary recipes. These menus and recipes are carefully selected by The Record-Herald's household editor, and cash prizes are awarded to the best that are received.

Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the competition. For full particulars, see the "Meals for a Day" department in The Chicago Record-Herald.

A NOTABLE AMUSEMENT EVENT.

Solomon, His Temple And the Queen of Sheba—The Grand And Colossal Biblical Spectacle By John Robinson son.

John Robinson's ever popular and ever welcome shows come to us this year with such important accessions and augmentations as to overshadow all contemporary amusement ventures. They have not only materially strengthened their ring and hippodrome performances, and largely added to their already vast menagerie, but are producing an astonishing new feature, which can but command itself to all classes of patrons. We allude to the grand biblical spectacle of "Solomon, His Temple and the Queen of Sheba." Unerring in historical accuracy, faithful in scenic delineation, realistic in depiction, incidents and events, impressively grand in pageant effects, magnificent in costumes and appointments, entrancing in musical features, bewitching in beautiful ballets and exciting in games and chariot races. This unprecedentedly sublime spectacle will command itself to every visitor. The show will exhibit at Hopkinsville Friday, Sept. 13.
